Bros. the leading merchants in this of the Carson ladies.

How Can Parents

allow their children to cough and strain and cough and calmly say:
"Oh! it's only a little cold," and keep giving them cheap and dangerous medicines, until they are down with lung fever or consumption, when they can be so easily relieved by BEGG'S CHERRY COUGH SYRUP? It has no superior and few equals. W. H.
Chedic, Druggist.

K. C. Eldridge the agent for the Singer Sewing Machine has also secured the agency for several leading pianos including the following makes, McEwen, Antisell, Newby and Evans, and several others, which he will sell on reasonable installments. For further particulars or inspection apply at his agency to the Ormsby House.

What on Earth

Is the reason people will not, cannot, or do not see any difference in cheap nos truns put up by Cheap John houses or irresponsible parties at enormous profits, rather than take a medicine of world wide reputation and one that is giving universal satisfaction at equal price?
No medicine in the world is giving such unparalleled satisfaction for purifying the blood as BEGG'S BLOOD PURIFIER & BLOOD MAKER, and every bottle that does not do its work, costs you nothing. W. H. Chedic, Druggist

THE RAILROADS.

Opinions and Facts From Headquarters.

"Can I secure any reliable information concerning the railroads," asked an APPEAL reporter to a few official employees in the telegraph office of the depot.

"Why, of course," replied Train Dispatcher Ardrey.

"The condition of the C. P. is worse than ever before and the probability is that no trains will be through on that line for at least ten days."

Geo. Mills—"This will in part affect the V. & T., but don't impress the people that the V. & T. is the only road that is stuck."

Reporter—"Are the telegraph lines open?"

Lewers—"All dispatches are indefinitely laid on the table to await the opening of the wires on the C.
P."

Mills—"Say, you fellows take too much stock in outside information, come to me if you want reliable facts."

Ardrey—(laughing.)—"None of us know what the real result will be and you can say anything you want."

Reporter—"The statement from various railroad men seem to be conflicting."

Ardrey—"You must always come here and interview Mills. He is always correct."

Reporter—"Can I get a press dispatch to 'Frisco?"

Mills—"No, we don't have time to fool with newspapers, and don't want them to fool with us."

Ardrey—"This is the way things stand: Night before last, we received news up to midnight and then the tones dropped. No communication by telegraph to amount to anything can be had and the storm which set in today looks rather blue. You can state that nothing that can be done to benefit the people will be overlooked."

Reporter—"Drop in and post us occasionally."

Mills—"All right, we'll write the item and set it up for you too."

On top of all these facts the statements came thick and fast as the weary item yanker passed through the door and the many readers of the APPEAL can make the best of the railroad situation as it was given us by the above parties.

The reason we quote is because Mills said we had established ourselves and would not be believed anyhow, this is why we employ the above style in conversing with railroad men, for they also have a history.

Cough! and Cough! and Cough!!

What in the world is the reason you will cough and keep coughing and still keep trying inferior medicines when BEGG'S CHERRY COUGH SYRUP will positively relieve your cough at once? This is no advertising scheme, but an actual fact, and we guarantee it. W.
H. Chedic, Druggist.

Jim Gardner, John Kersey and several other gentlemen came down from Wellington yesterday by stage as far as Child's place, and then walked into Carson. At Adams' the horses walked over a board fence, and Kersey pulled some beards off the same fence to get them out.

A BOY'S FAITHFULNESS.

How a Bear Admiral Was Made—A Duke's Good Deed.

[Life and Times of William IV.] One morning, when the duke of Clarence, having received his commission and his ship, was on his way to his tailor's in Plymouth, to get the new uniform, at a street corner he saw a boy crying, and stopped to inquire the cause. The lad looked up through his tears revealing a handsome, winning and intelligent face, and replied that his mother had died only a few days before, and that he had been cast homeless into the streets. "Where is your father?" asked the prince. "He was lost in the Sussex on the Cornwall coast two years ago." "How would you like to go to sea in a first rate man-of-war?" The boy's face brightened as he answered that he should like it very well.
The prince took out his pocketbook and wrote something upon a slip of paper, which he gave to the boy with a shilling. "Go down to the docks," he said, and with this shilling you will hire a boatman to carry you off to the Pegasus. When you get on board the ship you will give this paper to the officer whom you find in charge of the deck, and he will take care of you. Cheer up, my lad!
Show me that you have a true heart, and you shall surely find a true friend."

Arrived on board the Pegasus, the officer of the deck received him kindly, and sent him to sit upon a gun-carriage under the break of the poop. In less than an hour the prince came off in his new uniform, and the boy was strangely moved on discovering that the man who had promised to be his friend was none other than William, duke of Clarence, and captain of the frigate. The boy whose name was Albert Doyer, was taken into the cabin, where the prince questioned him, and forthwith he ordered him to be rated as a midshipman, and from his own purse he procured him an outfit. During the voyage to the American coast the prince became strongly attached to his youthful protegee keeping him about his person continually, and instructing him in general branches of education, as well as in his profession.
Time passed on and the boy grew to be a man, serving king and country faithfully.
In time William became king, and signed the commission which made Albert Doyer a rear-admiral. He exclaimed, as he put his signature to the document: "There—if I have ever done a good deed for England, it was when I saved to her service that true and worthy man!"

Diet for Athletes.

[Harper's Herald.]
In Dr. Sargent's recent lecture on "What Shall We Eat to Get Strong?" he said in the course of his remarks: It has been customary to train athletes on lean beef and mutton, but he thought this a mistake as tissue-making food should be used in combination with these, and the diet should be so changed as to meet the requirements of the organism of the person using it, for to establish one diet for all persons was ridiculous. Beef alone is not superior to meal, beans, or other farinaceous food, and the size of the muscles of a man is not indicative of his strength.
Farinaceous food tones a man down, and will tend to give him more endurance. A man who can strike a blow equal to 400 pounds would be called a strong man, but this strength cannot be kept up for any length of time on animal food, as it comes from the base of the brain, and endurance must be sought for in other kinds of food.
To reduce the weight of a man in training, lean meats may do, but when he is down in weight he must go back to food containing more carbon, such as ham and sausages, which should always be eaten cold. Three years ago this would have been considered ridiculous by trainers, but for a diet for running, walking, and rowing it has been found that saccharine food, with beef or mutton, is the best; tea, coffee and alcohol, as well as condiments, are objectionable; indeed, it is not the quantity of food a person eats that strengthens him, but the amount assimilated and worked into the organism.

Messrs H. Lowden, Harry Pfaff, Revenue Collector Reed, A. S.
Feder and M. Bromley are still stranded in Carson on account of the storm, notwithstanding the efforts of Messrs. Dempsey and Dew to take them to Reno.

Language is hardly strong enough to express my admiration of the merits of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is the best remedy for croup and whooping cough I have ever used. During the past eighteen years I have tried nearly all the prominent cough medicines on the market but say, and with pleasure too, that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best of all.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs.
Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays the pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for diarrhoea. Twenty five cents a bottle.
